1 Introduction

The Freedom of Information (FOI) Act 2000 and the Environmental Information Regulations (EIR) 2004 are legislation which supports the Government's commitment to greater openness in the public sector, a commitment supported by Bridgewater Community Healthcare NHS Foundation Trust.

The FOI Act enables members of the public to access information held by public authorities to ensure they are publically accountable for decisions and open to challenge.

The FOI Act also requires public authorities to have an approved publication scheme which is a means of providing access to information that an authority proactively publishes.

The Environmental Information Regulations (EIR) 2004 provides access to environmental information held by public authorities and requires public authorities to proactively make environmental information available to the public.

1.1 Objective

The aim of this policy is to demonstrate how the trust will achieve compliance with the Act and Regulations and to raise awareness of the responsibilities of the Trust and individual members of staff.

1.2 Scope

The Freedom of Information and Environment Information Regulations Policy applies to all recorded information held by the Trust. The Act and Regulations place the following requirements on the Trust:

- Information which is routinely published by the Trust is made available in accordance with the Trust publication scheme
- Information which is not covered in the Publication Scheme is made available to enquirers on request, which is 20 working days, unless a valid exemption or limit applies
- A fair and efficient internal appeal system is administered
- A properly structured approach to managing records is in place to ensure the essential records are maintained.

2 Definitions

The definitions applicable to this policy are as follows:

Absolute Exemption	Applied to information that does not have to be released to the applicant either through a Publication Scheme or through the general right of access under the FOI Act. Information to which an absolute exemption applies does not require a public authority to take a test of prejudice or for the balance of public interest to be in favour of non-disclosure.
Applicant	The individual(s), group or organisation requesting access to information under the FOI Act or the EIR.
Duty to Confirm or Deny	Duty to confirm if information is held and provide to the applicant (unless subject to exemption). Right to deny information held if it would impede lawful application.
EIR Exceptions	The EIR Regulations allow public authorities to withhold certain Information if it falls within certain categories. An absolute exception may apply where the requested information is the personal data of someone other than the subject of that data. In all other cases, the public authority must consider whether the public interest in applying the exception outweighs the public interest in disclosing the requested information.
Fees Notice	A written notification issued to an applicant stating that a fee is payable. The public authority is exempt from disclosing the information unless payment is received within three months from the date of notification.
Fees Regulations	National regulations that prohibit a fee with regard to certain types of request, set an upper limit on amounts that may be charged and prescribe the manner in which fees are to be calculated.
General Right of Access	An applicant's right to access information from a public authority subject to certain exemptions.
Information Commissioner	The Information Commissioner enforces and oversees the Data Protection Act 1998, the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and other related legislation. The Commissioner is a United Kingdom (UK) independent supervisory authority reporting directly to the UK Parliament.

Public Authority	As defined in the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) 2000, this includes organisations such as; NHS, Education, Police, Local Government etc.
Publication Scheme	A scheme provided for within the FOIA specifying and providing the information which the Trust routinely publishes or intends to publish.
Qualified Exemption	A qualified exemption requires a public authority to take a test of prejudice or to demonstrate that the balance of public interest is in favour of non-disclosure.
Reuse of Public Sector Information	Re-use means using the information for a purpose other than the purpose for which the document was originally produced where a fee may be charged.
Vexatious Requests	Where a public authority has previously complied with a request for information which was made by any person, it is not obliged to comply with a subsequent identical or substantially similar request from that person unless a reasonable interval has elapsed between compliance with the previous request and the making of the current request.
